Set in 15 acres of woodland we have a long standing reputation of engaging children from the community in a range of sports and activities, whatever their age, background, ability or fitness level. Encouraging them to try new activities not only benefits their health but also highlights skills that they didn't know they had; this in-turn builds confidence and self-esteem and improves their physical and mental wellbeing. Activities include climbing, abseiling, forest skills, kayaking, archery and orienteering. We encourage young people to integrate with others, form relationships and develop respect for rules and boundaries, ultimately helping them reach their full potential. Young visitors also learn independent skills such as household tasks including making beds, setting tables, clearing and washing up. We welcome over 4,000 children each year, of these 31% are from disadvantaged areas and 10% have additional needs.
